WHATELY
HALL HOTEL

HISTORY

A characterful 17th century hotel in the historic town of Banbury, on the River Cherwell in Oxfordshire, at the edge of the Cotswolds. Dating back to 1677, this historic inn boasts many original features throughout such as stone passages, priests' holes and a fine wooden staircase, with beautiful manicured gardens to the rear.

Whately Hall Hotel is an historic venue in Banbury, Oxfordshire for your wedding day. Overlooking the beautiful manicured gardens, our wedding rooms offer the perfect setting for your special occasion. With magnificent oak panelling, old closed fireplaces and iron chandeliers, it works towards creating the most romantic and charming atmosphere for you and your guests. We are licensed to host civil marriages and partnership ceremonies and offer complete packages for your special day.

Our Parkside Suite and Swift Restaurant can host up to 120 for ceremonies.

Our Swift Restaurant can cater to a maximum of 120 guests.

The hotel's 69 bedrooms offer guests a range of accommodation including Executive rooms, Classic rooms, interconnecting rooms and enhanced accessibility. Each room features a range of facilities and many offer unique features of the hotel lovingly retained and breath-taking garden views. Whatley Hall will reserve ten bedrooms for your party to book. Any rooms not allocated within six weeks prior to the wedding will be released back for general sale. Early check in may be requested but cannot be guaranteed. Your discount wedding code will be sent to you along with your booking confirmation.

Explore the Cotswolds, Oxford and Stratford-upon-Avon and benefit from the hotel's central Banbury location. Situated on the famous Banbury Cross, the hotel is just 300m from the main station, five minutes to Broughton Castle and 15 minutes to Upton.
